

How to get to 'Hacking the Smart City'

7 to 9 Nov 2013, University College London (UCL) Campus

To get to UCL, the closest underground stations are Warren Street, Euston Square, Euston Station and Godege Street. These are marked with white circles. PLEASE NOTE: the event is held in one venue at UCL on 7 Nov (Medical Sciences shown in the blue rectangle) and a different venue on 8/9 Nov (Haldane room of the Wilkins building shown in the red square). Please use the more detailed maps on the next page to help you find these venues on campus.

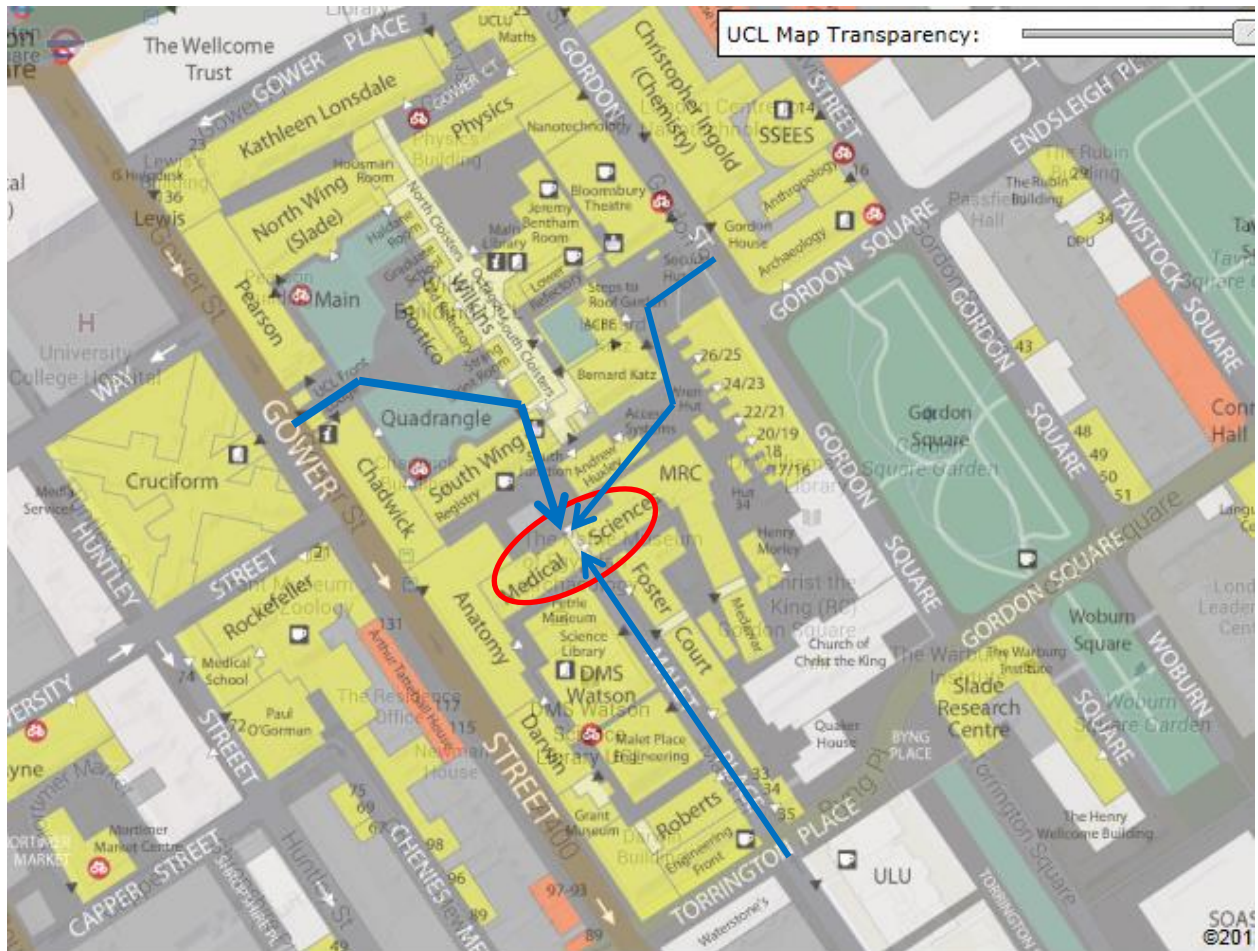

If you want to check these maps out online, here are some websites: <http://www.ucl.ac.uk/maps> and the Campus Route Finder <http://crf.casa.ucl.ac.uk/exploreMap.aspx>

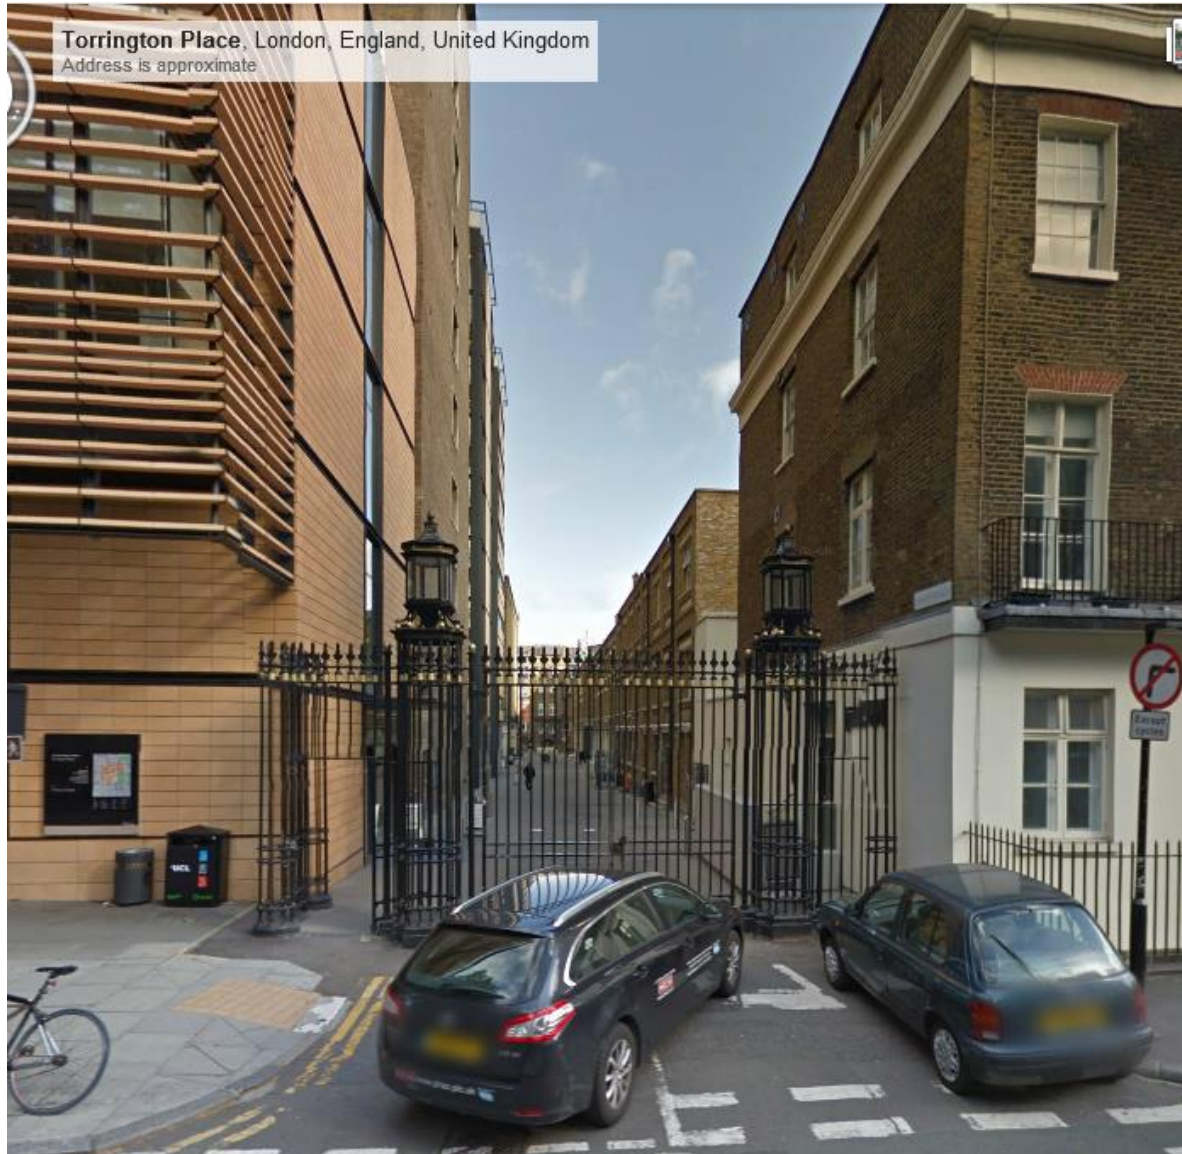

7 Nov 2013, 6 to 8pm

Venue: AV Hill Lecture Theatre, Medical Sciences, 131 Malet Place, London

The easiest way to find the venue is to enter from Torrington place. With Waterstones behind you, go through the black iron gates (see photo on the next page) into Malet Place and the UCL campus. The AV Hill Lecture Theatre is above the archway. Alternatively, you can enter the main UCL campus from Gower Street but you will then need to go through the South Wing to emerge outside again near the Medical Sciences Building. Finally, you can enter from Gordon Street and walk through the campus. If you cannot find the venue on the day, call us at 07746 710 508.

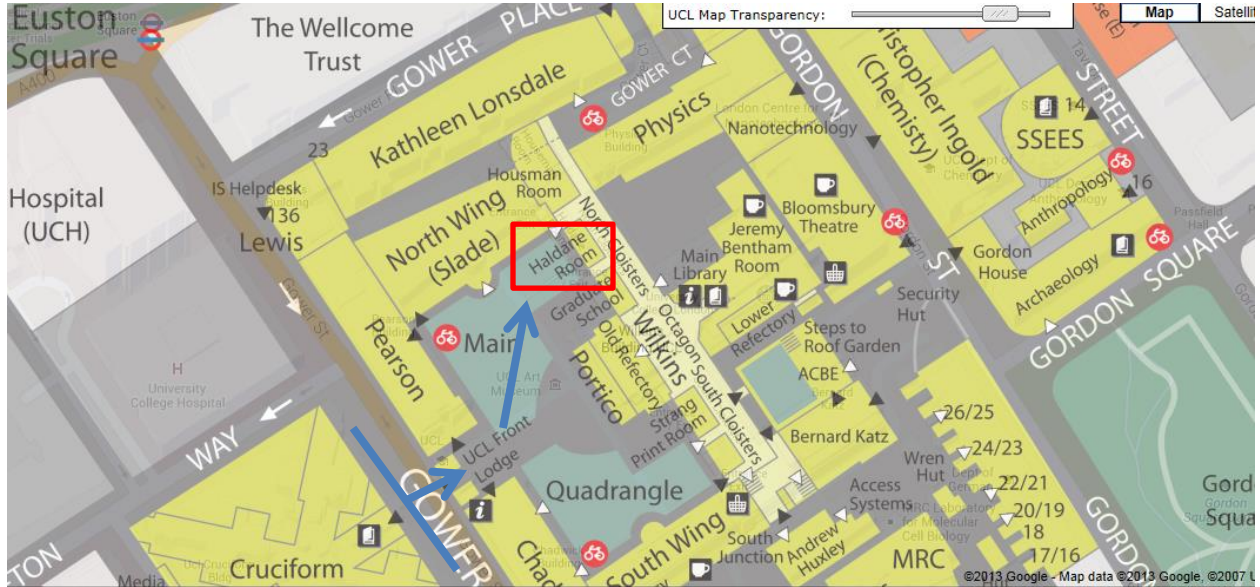

This is the view from Torrington place with the black iron gates. Go through them and walk until you see an archway in the distance, where you will find the AV Hill Lecture Theatre.

8 Nov 2013, 5 to 9 pm and 9 Nov 2013, 9am to 5pm

Venue: Haldane Room, Wilkins Building

The easiest way to find this is to go to the main entrance of UCL on Gower Street and enter the Wilkins building, which will be directly in front of you. The Haldane room is in the left section of the main dome and portico. Ring us if you have problems finding your way: 07746 710 508.

This is the view you will see when you are directly at the front entrance of UCL. Walk into the quad and enter on the left.